Police chief Arthur D. Simon, of Marlborough township, directs traffic on Geryville pike outside the damaged home of Harry G. Beaver, while neighbors inspect the 16-ton grade-all steam shovel which smashed into the front door Tuesday night. Estimated damages of $10,000 were caused by the run-away machine, which had been parked on a nearby hill. Mr. and Mrs. Beaver, and their son, Maylord, were in their second-floor bedrooms at the moment of impact, and were not hurt.

Damage Is $10,000 To Smashed House

Estimated damages of $10,000 were caused by the 16-ton grade-all steam shovel which smashed through the 18-inch front stone wall of a 150-year-old house on Geryville Pike, its owner reported yesterday after inspecting the debris-strewn residence.

Harry G. Beaver said it would cost $5000 to construct a new front wall on the house located a mile and a half north of Green Lane, while another $5000 would be required to repair and replace the floors, stairway, doors, windows and furniture which were damaged by the run-away shovel Tuesday night.

Beaver reported that the joists and rafters are sagging, and the first floor is badly buckled. He said that contractors have estimated it will take several months to repair the house, and it would be necessary for his family to live

2 Men, Woman Hurt in Crash At Kenilworth

Two men and a woman were hurt at 1:45 o'clock this morning when their large, 1950 convertible coupe smashed into a utility pole on Route 83, in Kenilworth.

Injured seriously were the two men, William Garman, 25, of Phoenixville, and Edward K. Moffly, of Paoli.

Garman and Moffly were thrown out of the car onto the highway when the car hit the pole.

Also injured was the driver, Mrs. Patricia Garman, 22, of Phoenixville, Garman's wife.

MRS. GARMAN suffered cuts and bruises of the face and ribs of the hands, in addition to being dazed.

In spite of her injuries, she was able to leave the car and summon help at the nearby home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Sands, 1049 Schuylkill road.

Sands called the Good Will Fire company, which sent two ambulances to the scene, driven by Her-

Concrete Mixer Drops off Truck

Trucks dropped a concrete mixer and a bale of hay in Pottstown yesterday morning without hurting anyone.

The concrete mixer dropped off a John T. Dyer company truck, West King and Berks streets, while delivering concrete to the Pottstown Manor new homes development being erected in the vicinity.

A company spokesman said the strain of going up an incline snapped the bolts. The mixer was raised by a derrick. The concrete had to be thrown away.

The hay dropped from a Sunshine Feed store truck at North Washington street. A passerby notified Desk Sgt. Anthony H. Herman, who passed the news along May 20 for removal of a brain tumor.

The driver, Albert Holt, Perkiomenville RD 1, who occupied injury, said he was going east on Beech street and could not steer away from the pole.

Slight Relief Arrives From Heat, Humidity

Pottstownians glories in a slight break in the heat wave yesterday as the mercury climbed only to a high of 88 and the heavy humidity of the previous day dissipated in the wake of cooling gusts of wind which swayed above the roof tops like ballet dancers.

The eight-degree difference in Tuesday's and yesterday's temperature highs was received heartily, but a little rain would have been welcomed even more.

Yesterday was the 13th day of the current drought, which has been marked by only a brief shower which evaporated almost as quickly as it hit the pavement.

Though no records were immediately available last night, the Philadelphia weatherman said the drought "really isn't anything to be concerned about. We've had worse, especially in 1930."

YESTERDAY'S temperature drop evidently was not a sign of future cool weather, it seems. The weatherman forecast today's high-est temperature would range from 86 to 92.

Meanwhile, as the rain continued to lurk somewhere in the sky and failed to fall, Eugene B. Swinerville, superintendent of the borough sewage disposal and water filtration, lauded lawn owners for their continued adherence to the sprinkling ban.

"The response to the ban is wonderful," he said. "Practically everybody is abiding by the proclamation. I only saw two violators yesterday morning."

He added that "pressures

Boy Seeks Out Fire in Stowe

A 4-year-old Stowe boy proved a good fire detective yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Hiestler Gephart, 428 Grosstown road, Stowe, said the family smelled smoke faintly at the supper table. Her 4-year-old son, Robert, got up and announced, "I'm going to find the fire."

He found it quickly in an unlikely place—around the roots of a cedar tree near the house. Apparently a cigarette stub, found nearby, had been thrown there when lit. The blaze was put out quickly with a garden hose.

Man's Condition Is Reported 'Improved'

Raphael Teitlebaum, North Washington and North streets, chief metallurgist of Spicer Manufacturing division, was reported as being "slightly improved" yesterday in University of Pennsylvania's Graduate hospital, Philadelphia.

The 38-year-old metallurgist has been on the hospital's critical list since he was operated on the past May 20 for removal of a brain tumor.

Mike! Such a Big Bite!

Bicentennial Bazaar Offers Fun, Fashions

By MARY JANE FEGELY
(Mercury Society Editor)

Under the sponsorship of the Senior auxiliary of Pottstown hospital, adults and kiddies alike enjoyed a day filled with everything from lemon sticks and antique to the fashions for women at the Bicentennial bazaar on the hospital grounds yesterday.

Visitors to the bazaar began arriving at 10 o'clock to browse through close to a dozen specialty tents. Old type painted signs informed the strollers what wares were sold inside the gay green and white structures.

"Strawberry Town" revealed not only its namesake, but all of the other seasonal fruits plus flowers, some vegetables and, standing guard over all of this, a charming young lady of straw with a bright ginger dress.

For the housewife there were dozens of preserves in the Dutch cupboard, and cakes, candies, punch in the Sweet Shoppe, run by the Deb-Aides of the hospital. "Red Lion Inn" provided hot dogs, hamburgers and other festival foods.

While "Rising Sun Inn" workers served lunches and dinners to over 500 people.

Tattooing, crochet work, aprons and all types of fancy work were seen in "Ye Old Sewing Circle," with much of the work being done by auxiliary members.

Children gathered around the

Farmers Look for Rain For Corn, Potato Crops

By CHARLES T. HEARN
(Mercury Staff Writer)

The farmer always has problems; either there is too much rain or there is not enough.

Right now he could do with a little shower, although there is no danger of drought in the area yet.

If it had not been for the three weeks' heavy rainfall in the past month the farmer would probably be looking skyward for big, black lumbering clouds.

But the three weeks' rainfall was too much. For farmers like B. O. Mastin, whose farm in Palm devotes 90 acres to potatoes, small losses were suffered.

Mastin said, "The potatoes planted early in May were okay because they had a head start in getting started growing, but one section of the land was drowned out."

In spite of the loss this year, Mastin expects to have a good crop.

The problem of dry weather, which the area has been having lately, has not created a major

Officials Open Bids on Stowe, E. End Buildings

The two new branch banks that the National Bank of Pottstown will open in the East End and in Stowe are expected to have a total cost in the neighborhood of $150,000 to $200,000 apiece, it was announced yesterday after four bids were opened by bank officials.

C. Fred Herbsleb, president of the recently-consolidated bank, said the decision on accepting bids would not be made by directors before their meeting June 25. He said bank officials hope that, if the bids are satisfactory to directors, the branch buildings can be built within approximately nine months.

Herbsleb said only local contractors were invited to submit bids. The four who submitted bids (but not the only ones invited to do so) were:

Frank Hutt Jr., 1117 High street; Sanders and Thomas incorporated, Security Trust building, High and Hanover streets; James C. Wilke, Pottstown RD 2, and Warren B. Zern, King and Franklin streets.

THE PLAN to build branch banks was announced early this year, when consolidation of the Campaign Units Will Form for United Fund

Campaign committees of the United Fund for Pottstown and vicinity will be formed at a board of directors luncheon meeting to be held today at 12:15 p. m. at the Brookside country club.

Vincent Fisher announced that the 27-man board with J. Alfred Marquet, president of the fund, presiding, will appoint members to six committees which form the operating unit of the campaign scheduled to get underway late in October.

Committees to be organized are the budget and admissions groups which will review budgets of those organizations included in the United Fund and determine whether they are worthy of support.

The public relations committee's job will be to tell the story of the United Fund, educate the public and acquaint the people

Car Damaged On High Street

A Pottstown man's car was damaged in a collision with the sedan of a police-avoiding driver, it was reported yesterday by borough police.

Francis A. Silvestri, 384 New street, said his car was grazed by an eastbound car while he was backing into a parking space on High street near Charlotte street late Tuesday.

The eastbound car stopped, but its unknown driver started up again when he heard that police were on the way. The police were Sgt. Thomas A. Lawler and Patrolman William Mars.

Crash Injures Reading Woman

One woman was injured slightly in a collision between a sedan and a station wagon at High and Glasgow streets yesterday at 2:51 p. m.

Mrs. Bert Sweigart, of Reading, a passenger in the station wagon, was treated for cuts of the left cheek and left knee at Memorial hospital. She was X-rayed and discharged.

Mrs. Susan Cehlar, of Douglassville RD 1, was the operator of the sedan. She identified herself to the driver of the station wagon, Rufus Sweigart, of Reading, and left the scene of the accident.

Sweigart said he was going west on High street about 25 miles per hour when the sedan coming toward him made a left hand turn onto Glasgow street and he could not stop in time to avoid hitting the car.

Mrs. Cehlar's car was damaged on the right front fender, headlight and bumper. The station wagon had the same damages to the left side of the car as the sedan.

Building Repairs Start at Schools

Maintenance men have begun the annual Summer job of repairing borough school buildings.

At Pottstown Senior High school, workmen are tearing out partitions in the chemistry laboratory, transforming the present four classrooms and three closets into three larger rooms and only one closet. Some of the chemistry tables also are being repaired.

The library is being moved from the third floor to the former study hall on the second floor. The new site will allow more space for books.

A Quick Look at Your Neighbor

By LARRY DAVIS

DOES YOUR handwriting slant to the left of verticle? If it does, then you are a person who is ruled by your head rather than your heart.

That is the opinion of Roger B. Rood, Douglassville handwriting analyst who has made a hobby of other person's penmanship since 1914.

Given a three-page specimen of any individual's handwriting, Rood can determine the emotional pattern of the writer as well as his ability to think for himself. In fact, he can tell you with reasonable accuracy how you fit into 82 known personality characteristics.

Looking no more than a day over 51, Rood is 63, with dark hair and eyes and a slightly ruddy, clear complexion. He is a southpaw and he moves with an agility that belies his three-score-and-three.

Rood was born in Connecticut and is a graduate (1909) of Eastman college where he majored in secretarial work and business administration. In addition, he has studied shorthand reporting, law and accounting by correspondence.

Now an accountant with Louis P. Young, East High street automobile dealer, Rood became interested in handwriting in 1914. He studied for several years to receive his amateur certificate and in 1950 he was awarded his professional diploma. In between, he dropped the subject, but it was too fascinating for him to ignore.

Grapho-analysis had its modern origin in Kansas in 1917, although it was theorized as early as the 17th century. Rood regards it as an aid to modern psychological evaluation, but certain of its applications can stand alone as an evaluation of truth.

He has used his hobby largely for his own satisfaction in entertaining his friends and acquaintances and in living up church and lodge meetings. Like the magician, his talents are frequently in demand. But on occasion his advice has been sought on confidential personality evaluations.

"A signature may have some revealing aspects," he says, "but only by evaluating several pages of handwriting can the true analyst arrive at a more revealing conclusion."

He has found his analyses valuable in helping to determine the inclinations of children, in vocational guidance, in selecting employees for a specific position, in disclosing forged documents in criminology and in psychiatry. From two to three years intensive study is required before handwriting can reveal the nature of the individual.

"I'm always at it," he confesses. "It's like a detective story, finding individuals characteristics. It's always revealing."

Each of the 82 personality factors of the average human being can be classified in handwriting from weak, variable, average, strong and intense.

Handwriting is as individual as the person to whom it belongs, Rood maintains. It is an extension of all his personality traits. That's why identical twins do not have identical penmanship; actually they are different in personality.

Handwriting, however, is not used to disclose the sex of the writer, or any of his physical characteristics. It confines its value to an exploration of the person's psychological makeup.

Before settling in Douglassville in 1938 when he married Edith Alice Rhoads, Rood was employed for many years as an accountant with the American Brass company, and as a manager for the Florida East Coast Hotel company. At one time he operated his own travel agency in New York state.

Only once has he attempted to analyze? Mrs. Rood's writing. It showed that she had leanings toward procrastination, he said.

"Indeed," comments his wife wryly. "But I still get things done when he wants them."

WHEN you step into the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Edward Keller at 31 High street, time turns back more than 100 years.

Keller, 58, and a resident of Pottstown since he was three, has devoted his life to assembling a priceless collection of early American and European antiques with which his home is richly furnished.

Employed in the shipping department of the Stanley G. Flagg company with which he has been associated for the past 35 years, Keller is a collector's collector. He has painstakingly assembled scores of items that have been handed down through his own family's generations and has combed attics and barns and cellars in search of rare treasures of antiquity.

Other collectors and dealers have traveled from as far away as Florida to see his Colonial, Queen Anne, Victorian and Chippendale specimens; many have offered to buy, but the answer is always the same: No.

His home is a treat to light the eye of the antique lover. Every piece that he has, from a German jewel box to massive Welsh cabinets is serviceable and in use.

Keller's grandparents emigrated to the United State from Germany 122 years ago, and he is the second oldest of eight children born to Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Keller. The family moved here in 1897 and settled first on Beech street and later at 52 King street. He has lived at his present address 30 years.

At the age of 14, while still in school, Keller was attracted to antiques through his association with the late Heiste Boone, one of the nation's earliest and more famous collectors.

His fascination with a David W. Rittenhouse grandfather clock, of which only five or six are known to exist today (value: $30,000 to $50,000), in Boone's collection fired his imagination.

He has been collecting ever since. Tips from friends, visits to country sales, accidental "finds," all have helped fashion the tastefully laid out rooms of his home.

Specimens of porcelain and china that he "picked up" years ago at sales for a nickel or a dime now are listed in the antique dealers' catalogue at from $50 to $60.

Collecting has become a family hobby. Keller spends every spare moment on his antiques about which he speaks with deep feeling. He is assisted in restoring items by his wife, the former Mary Ann Weinholt, and his 20-year-old son, Mickey, a student at Drexel Institute.

Some of his valuable pieces accumulated 20 to 24 coats of paint or varnish as they passed down. No modern solvent or paint remover could eat down to the wood; the only way to restore the original beauty was to sand away for hours, days and weeks.

Looking through the Keller home, the visitor will see a rare Seth Thomas clock still in working order and dating from 1850. From the same period is a Boston rocker with the original fruit design beautifully painted on the back. Still in use is a massive four-poster bed with rope springs more than 100 years old. Original Goodey prints, from before the Civil War, hang from the walls.

Cabinets are filled with Adam Rose porcelain, Staffordshire china, Lesterville, Majolica and Steiglitz glass. The latter is the finest glassware ever made (1772) in this country.

But Keller's most valuable items are two exceedingly rare Dresden china figurines in blue and white made in 1710 by the famous German artist Boettger.

The day of the collector finding anything of value in out of the way places is just about gone, Keller believes. Dealers in antiques have all but exhausted their source of supply.

Yet he himself never gives up. Somewhere soon, another relic of early America may show up at a most unexpected place.

Pennsburg Principal To Lead Discussion At School Conference

William Moser, supervising principal, Pennsburg school district, will be leader of a group discussion during the three-day conference of secondary school leaders that began yesterday in Newtown Square, Delaware county.

Several hundred teachers and administrators from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware are participating. Parents, school board members and PTA leaders will join the educators in discussions.

Moser's group will discuss: "What are the duties of the secondary school principal?"

Dr. Allen Harman, assistant Montgomery county superintendent of schools, will be chairman of a discussion on "What should constitute a school day?"

The conference is being held in the lodge of Drexel Institute of Technology.

CORN, POTATOES —

problem as yet to Mastin who said, "I like it dry in the early part of the season, but it is drying out a little too fast right now. We could stand a little shower."

MASTIN'S 19-year-old daughter, Jean, is the reigning queen of the potato growers of Pennsylvania. The past year she was crowned after winning the state-wide competition.

The rain could have had an adverse effect on the corn crop of the area if the farmers had planted early, but most farmers had started planting during the latter part of May after the rains had just about dissipated.

Oscar Hellrich, who has 20 acres of corn planted on his farm in East Greenville RD., said that farmers who have had trouble because of the rain would not have so much trouble if they stopped using crow repellent.

He said, "If you use it when you get a lot of rain, the corn does not germinate."

"Another reason so much corn does not come up is because it is planted too early when the ground isn't warmed up enough to make the corn germinate."

BUT MOST of all, Hellrich blames the failure of most corn crops during rainy weather on the use of crow repellent. "If the dealer's smart, he don't sell that stuff," Hellrich said.

Oddly enough, what one farmer will say cannot be done, another farmer will go ahead and do with almost miraculous results.

Frank L. Cleaver, Pennsburg RD., started planting 24 acres of corn on May 7, before the heavy rains began and now he boasts, "I have the best corn in Montgomery county."

"I only seen one field with corn as big as mine and that was down in Harleysville," he said.

Even the hot weather meets with approval on the Cleaver farm. While other farms report that the growth of their crops are at a standstill, Cleaver says, "This warm weather is good for it—it makes it grow bigger."

He added, however, that "we'll be needing a little rain soon."

He said that his corn is about a foot high now and he attributes his crop's growth to the heavy rainfall which gives the corn "nice big ears."

THE RAINS which made the ground on Walter Lutz's farm soggy held him back in planting corn. He was even planting this week trying to catch up for the time he lost waiting for the ground to dry out.

Lutz said that some of his neighbors had planted early and had lost "quite a bit of corn."

Lutz is another anti-crow repellent user. He said that when he did use it "the crows would pull out the stalk and throw kernel away, doing the damage whether they ate it or not."

The only objections he had to the rain was that it held him back, he said.

Charles S. Wismer, Trappe, reported that the 28 acres he planted in the latter part of May were "none the worse because of the rain, because weeds grew before the corn and kept the flooding under control."

Wismer said, "I've been a farmer for 30-some years and I've been using crow repellent for a long time without trouble," in support of the tar-derivative, crow chaser.

HE SAID he planted late in May because with the new high-grade fertilizers on the market, the growth of corn is hastened, making it unnecessary to plant early.

The dry weather does not worry Wismer yet, because, in his own words, "The corn is small and is not suffering from the drought it suffers when it gets taller. Then it needs a lot of water."

Harry T. Samsworth, Trappe, planted his corn in the end of May and his crop was not affected.

He said if he had planted early he "would have been set back because the excess moisture would have rotted rather than germinated the corn."

Paul S. Kriebel, Bally, "just finished up planting potatoes during the week."

HE SAID that he could not attempt it before because the land was low and the equipment would get stuck in the soft ground.

Kriebel had postponed planting early in May when he usually starts work on his potato crop because he was busy cleaning up

NEW BANKS —

National and National Iron banks was effected.

At present, both the National Bank building, 205 High street, and the former National Iron building, 229 High street, are in use, but bank officials have announced plans to close the Iron building after the branches are finished.

The buildings will be eight-sided. The general design is that of a large rectangle at front and a smaller rectangle adjoining it at the left rear.

The larger rectangle will be 50 by 34 feet. The smaller one will be 30 by 36 feet.

Purpose of the design is to make it easy for the buildings to be expanded, when necessary, along either or both of two sides. If both additions are built, the buildings would become one complete rectangle.

The larger of the original rectangles will house the main banking rooms and tellers' windows. The smaller one will house such things as the vault, a conference room and coupon booths.

HERBSLEB SAID features of both branches will include parking lots large enough for about 40 cars along similar lines.

He will attend Pottstown Senior High school in the fall and the bicycle was his only means of transportation to school, Edward said.

Welfare Groups Prefer To Amend Adoption Laws

HARRISBURG, June 18 (P)—Amendments to Pennsylvania's present adoption laws in 1952 instead of an entire new law were recommended today by a statewide child welfare meeting.

Some 98 representatives of 61 statewide organizations attended the meeting, sponsored by the state welfare department, to formulate proposed adoption legislation for the 1952 General assembly.

The delegates recommended that the adoption legislation be embodied in a new basic child welfare code at some later date. They said next year was too early.

The Rev. John Smoker, pastor, concluded the meeting by giving a brief report on his work.

Man Held on Charge Of Beating, Robbing

Robert Bliesath, 21, of Birdsboro RD, is being held in Reading city jail for a hearing today on his admission that he and three Reading youths beat and robbed a Reading man in the city park Sunday night and robbed him of his wristwatch and shoes.

Bliesath and the three boys, Jerry Mitchell, 20; Gerald K. Stephenson, 18, and Benjamin Leonti, 20, were arrested yesterday. The charges against the foursome are robbery and robbery by assault and force.

Their victim was Herbert Jackson.

Ex-Convict Flees Court; Brought Down by Tackle

PITTSBURGH, June 18 (AP)—A 39-year old ex-convict failed in a desperate attempt to escape from criminal court today—thanks to a former football player who captured him with a flying tackle.

John Winkler broke away from a deputy sheriff on the third floor of the courthouse after he had been sentenced to 2½ to five years for attempted rape.

The deputy sheriff, James Ventmiller, 34, suffered a probable broken right leg when he fell as he chased Winkler downstairs.

John Sullivan, a carpenter, was just returning from lunch when he spotted Winkler. He brought him down with a flying tackle. Winkler then was taken before Judge Samuel A. Weiss who held him for grand jury action on a charge of prison breach.

"I guess it was a good tackle," Sullivan grinned. "I used to play guard with the Greenfield prep football team."

Communion Vessels Displayed in Barroom

LANCASTER, June 18 (AP)—A valuable antique communion service, taken from a pastor's garage two days ago, was found today on display in a downtown barroom.

The communion set was used by Dr. William H. Bollman, pastor of the historic First Evangelical and Reformed church, on his visits to members of his congregation who are ill or infirm.

Dr. Bollman said he returned on Monday from such a call, drove his car into the garage, placed the set, in its wooden carrying case, on a shelf, and went into the house, leaving the garage door open.

Unable to find the set later that day, Dr. Bollman made a public appeal for its return. Newspapers reported the theft.

How did the service turn up in a barroom?

ROBERT BRIGHTON, bartender at a taproom two blocks from the church in the central part of Lancaster, said his five young sons, gathering salvage from behind stores, found the case on a pile of cast-off boxes and the like. One of the five, curious about the case, opened it, and decided it would be best to hand it over to his father.

Brighton said he placed the set on show in the hope of finding the owner, adding that neither he nor any of his patrons was sure just what it was.

The identification was made thanks to a man from Columbia, 12 miles away, who having seen the set in the barroom and then having read a newspaper story about the theft, told Brighton his shopkeeper doubtless was what the church was looking for.

Yugoslavia Trims Bulgarian Relations

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, June 18 (AP)—In a move just one short step from a formal break, Yugoslavia ended tonight all but messenger-boy diplomatic relations with Bulgaria, its Russian-led Cominform neighbor.

The official Belgrade radio said Yugoslavia is recalling all but a single attaché in Sofia as a result of Bulgaria's rejection of three formal notes protesting the alleged kidnapping of an employee at Yugoslavia's embassy in Bulgaria's capital.

It was the strongest action Premier Marshal Joseph Tito's government has taken against any of the hostile Cominform countries since Yugoslavia ruptured diplomatic relations completely with tiny Albania in November, 1950, as part of the southeastern European cold war.

Today's action came after three formal protests made by the Yugoslav foreign office concerning the incident. All were promptly rejected by Bulgaria.

Belgrade radio said Yugoslavia's patience has become exhausted.

Giant Clean-up Job Ahead

Mrs. Harry G. Beaver gazes sorrowfully at the unwelcome intruder which crashed through the front door Tuesday midnight. As the runaway steam shovel smashed into the front of the stone home, it demolished the porch roof, the flagstone porch floor, and scattered stone from the front wall into the living room and onto the stairway.

SMASHED HOUSE —

it began coasting down the hill towards the pike, broke through a culvert in front of the Beaver home, and then crashed into the building.

In bed at the time, Mr. and Mrs. Beaver were jarred by the crash, while their son, Maylord, was tossed on the floor unhurt.

As it smashed into the front of the house, the huge machine demolished the porch roof, the flagstone porch floor, and scattered stone from the front wall into the living room and onto the stairway.

Police chief Arthur D. Simon, of Malborough township, who investigated the accident, said the shovel's brake was released and the machine was out of gear.

KRAUSS CLAIMED the shovel was left braked and in gear, and may have been released by children playing in the area.

Jeffersonville State police troopers Raymond Miller and Charles Hicklin reported that they could find no evidence that the shovel was tampered with.

Hundreds of passing motorists and nearby residents thronged the partially-demolished house yesterday to inspect the damage.

"I would be rich if I charged admission," commented Beaver. "My house has been jammed with people all day."

Chief Simon remained at the scene throughout the day as a portion of the shovel hung over the road, causing one-way traffic.

Plans were being made last night to remove the obstruction today. The front part will be braced with timbers to prevent the house from collapsing further when the steam shovel is extracted.

Beaver, an employee of Abbotts Dairies, Philadelphia, purchased the old house seven years ago, after it had been completely remodeled to resemble a Colonial farmhouse.

Duff Called Go-Between For Eisenhower, Fine

DENVER, June 18 (AP)—U. S. Sen. James H. Duff today was reported to have acted as a go-between in an effort to bring Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania together on the issue of federal patronage—but the report could not immediately be confirmed.

The report was to the effect, that was left braked and in gear, and Duff, an ardent Eisenhower supporter, went to the general and told him to talk over any issues at hand—including handling of federal patronage in Pennsylvania—with Fine.

A published story (in the Philadelphia Bulletin), stated that it is doubtful control of federal patronage in Pennsylvania is all that Fine wants in return for the 32 Pennsylvania GOP convention delegates he is believed to control.

CHERRY CROP —

cherries this year, the largest he has ever produced.

"The cherry crop looks very good this season," says Rhoads. "I started picking the early sweet ones two weeks ago, and I expect to start on the Oxheart cherries in another week."

BESIDES the current hot and dry weather, growth of cherries was encouraged by a mild winter and little frost damage in the Spring. The cherry season is expected to end around July 10.

Rhoads said he planned to sell his output at from 35 to 40 cents a quart.

Lou Costello Fined For Drunken Driving

VAN NUYS, Calif., June 18 (AP)—"I haven't had a thing to drink," comedian Lou Costello told reporters today when released from jail after a two-hour stay.

But his attorney was reading from a different script.

He pleaded the retund movie comic guilty to charges of drunken driving and failing to have an operator's license, and the city attorney moved for dismissal of a hit-run charge.

Police said Costello's car hit two fences, backed into a parked car, and rolled down a boulevard on the wrong side without lights early today. Costello didn't appear in court, but municipal Judge Parks Stilwell accepted the guilty plea and a fine of $150 in lieu of 30 days in jail.

Bell Official Quotes High Equipment Cost

HARRISBURG, June 18 (AP)—A Bell Telephone company cost engineer testified today it would cost nearly a billion dollars to reproduce the company's entire furnishings and equipment at present-day prices.

G. E. Wiltbank, representing the Bell Telephone company at a hearing before the Public Utility commission on Bell's request for a $32,000,000-a-year rate increase, said:

"The original cost for the total plant (equipment other than land and buildings) was $659,799,642 and the estimated reproduction cost new as of Dec. 31, 1951, is $831,274,488."

Bazaar's Fun, Fashions Are Caught by The Mercury's Camera

The miniature merry-go-round was received with varying degrees of interest, from sheer delight to a slight suspicion of the round robin antic, as children found fun at the bicentennial bazaar in specially planned amusements.

This is the guy that won the prize says Roger Barman as he says off his dalmation, Wilco, who won the best groomed award in the pet show.

Joy Ann Dubrow voices her opinion of the whole thing in emphatic terms as she searches for a familiar face among those attending the hospital bazaar.

Position is not everything in life for Bobbie Tagert as he directs his entire attention to the puppet show offering at the bazaar.

This thing isn't as much fun as I thought it would be, says Minnie Bowling as she tries out the pint-sized bloney in the playground.

Bazaar in Photos

All of the pictures shown on this page and on other pages of The Mercury, pertaining to the Bicentennial bazaar, were taken at the affair on the hospital grounds and the lot next to Nightingale street, by Mercury Staff Photographer Eugene Orlando.

The bazaar was sponsored by the Senior auxiliary of Pottstown hospital. Over 1000 visitors attended the bazaar which featured luncheons, dinners, snacks, a puppet show, fashion show, pet show, antique auction and midway for children.

Activities on the grounds began at 11 a. m. and ended around 11 o'clock. Mrs. C. Robert Elcker, president of the Senior auxiliary was general chairman of the bazaar.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Patrial, (above, couple on left), sit at one of the tables to enjoy a cool drink with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Patrial.

The traffic on the hospital grounds was heavy during the bazaar. Summertime conversation, as this view of some of the 1000 who attended the affair shows.

Weatherman Co-operates to Make Bicentennial Bazaar Colorful Success

Receptive Bazaar Audience of 350 Views Summer Finery In Auxiliary Style Show

By MERCURY STAFF WRITER JANET ALLISON

Even the best scenic designers couldn't have devised a prettier Summer setting than that for yesterday's fashion show, held as part of Pottstown hospital auxiliaries all-day Bicentennial Bazaar on the hospital grounds.

The weather was ideal for the occasion, with perfect blue skies and bright sunshine, and a stiff breeze that whipped this season's full skirted frocks and displayed the myriads of colorful and ruffled petti-coats worn beneath them.

With the red brick of the nurses' home as a backdrop, the models came by twos to the steps, which were carpeted with greener-than-real grass. They came down the steps, posed and then walked back through the audience, giving the approximately 350 present an opportunity to finger the materials of their filmy Summer dresses, inspect the styling and, furtively and hopefully, inquire about the cost.

After the inevitable preliminary difficulties with the public address system, Mrs. Elmer Jackson, commentator, welcomed the group and the show was on.

To get the audience into a bicentennial spirit, members of the hospital's Deb and 'Teen age auxiliaries modeled the colonial costumes they had made and were wearing as hostesses. The group filed down the carpeted steps and mingled with the audience, some of them braving the sun, and others comfortably seated beneath green striped umbrellas.

A SIGH of envy rose from the audience as the first of the attractive models appeared, clad in brief swimming suits and short sets.

One of the most chic suits shown was a green and yellow print on white pima cloth. The straight cut bodice was cut out in the leaf design of the print, and the midriff was closely molded. A feature of the halter suit, this season's swimming pet, was the boxer short, America's attractive answer to the Bikini suit.

For Summer luncheons, one green finechecked cotton was perfect, with its cool Spencer jacket, attached in back, the smart princess midriff, and a skirt that flared from unpressed, inverted pleats. With it the young model wore a bright red cloche.

Cool, simple, and perfect for unexpected callers was one striped denim made with a red-piped V neckline, the piping repeated in a double row at the waist and outlining the diagonal bodice-to-hem button closing.

Summer golfers admired the pastel cotton shown. It strided to the slender and chic, the blonde model showed to best advantage this costume, with narrow trousers and a strapless, ruffled bodice. With it she had a matching hat.

Pedal pushers again, and this time only for the young in heart. These were of striped denim, with the new narrow trousers and a long box jacket piped in black and with long cuffed sleeves and shiny shoe buttons.

Within the past ten years cottons have joined the formal class, being worn for every occasion from bathing the baby to dances in the city. Now denim has joined the "big city" class. The best evidence of this was shown in a short formal of charcoal and white striped denim, fastened surprisingly and effectively with huge rhinestone buttons.

The top was square and simple with wide straps, and the entire bodice and full skirt was devised of perfectly matched bias stripes. A touch of color was achieved by a red-orange flower at the waistline and a filmy red-orange chiffon scarf stuffed into one hip pocket.

THE GIBSON girl was never like this, was the general comment following the appearance of one model, wearing a short suit with figured white pique short shorts and a blouse with full puffed Gibson girl sleeves, but with a wide square neckline that just barely covered the shoulders.

Hats were the order of the day, worn with virtually every costume, and adding a touch of urban chic. For the most part they were wide, floppy brimmed straws, although a few cloches were featured. The wide brims, often an unfortunate choice in a high wind, added much to the feminine picture of Summer, 1952.

One of the most attractive hats have reached a new and pretty was shown with a youthful print high this Summer, with linen, sundress with short puffed sleeves, nylon, sheers and pima cloth used and a wide, square neckline. The hat, of natural yellow straw, had a band of off-navy velvet, and was trimmed with two bunches of cornflowers in the band.

The intricacies of style were shown in one red and white sundress, completely simple in style. It was sleeveless, with a fitted bodice and full spreading skirt. The beauty of the frock was in the material, which was tucked from top to bottom. With it the model wore a charming pixie hat made of pink ribbon loops secured with a navy gingham band.

ANOTHER sportswoman's delight was a red chambray golfing dress, with a neat red and white striped tailored top edged with solid red chambray, and a gored, solid color skirt, with a practical and attractive pocket in back.

For the spectator sportswoman there was a neat suit of red and white checked cotton suit, with a graceful box pleated skirt under a long Norfolk jacket with white collar and cuffs and huge white pearl buttons. Precisely fitted, the long yellow straw jacket featured a very smart treatment at the neckline, with separate tabs buttoned on either side of the large buttons. A white veiled pillbox hat and short white gloves completed the ensemble.

Starting was the word for the blue denim pedal pusher and top set. A costume which should be re-center, held in place with a quarter back belt.

FOR THE MOST part the dresses shown were styled with full, petti-coated skirts, but one exception proved to be a favorite with the audience. It was of natural linen with a simple sleeveless bodice. A mock bolero was outlined on the bodice with narrow bands of black braid, and a narrow black patent belt cinched the waist. In back the skirt was fashioned with unpressed pleats.

A tunic bodice, sculptured to follow the hips and flaring into a full skirt was the feature of one beige and white shadow check cotton, simple in design, with a smart collar and shoulder tab treatment in white pique. Completing the costume was a swallow wing hat of white straw with brown velvet trim.

Almost extreme in tailoring, one tan linen dress was a perfect example of mid-day Summer smartness. The sleeveless bodice had a breast pocket which buttoned with pleated flaps, and a straight skirt cinched at the waist with a bright red braided belt. The hat and bag were imported from Italy, and made of natural straw with a pixie crown of colored, hand-woven straw circles.

A real stunner for the younger set was modeled by one attractive young woman. Of sturdy denim, it was striped in red and black on white. The empire bodice had a surprise top with curved shoulders and a full flared skirt. Her leghorn parasol hat was trimmed with a circle of ivy leaves and red berries. Elitted to a tee was one silk crepe dress, designed for the older woman. It was of white, with a delicate feather design in black. The skirt flared gently, and the simple bodice was highlighted with a huge butterfly bow of black. With her costume the model chose a scoop hat of black milan with a latticed crown and velvet trimming.

WHITE WITH plae blue always makes a hit with men, and one dress would be a particular masculine favorite. It was of sheer linen, shirtwaist in style, with the collar, cuffs and the entire front closing faced with stitched delicate blue satin.

A coat dress of huge black and white checks, highlighted with red flowers at the waist and a wide black patent belt caused many a close budget to be inspected again. It closed with large black bone buttons, had an elasticized waistline with back fullness, a high soft collar and smartly cut sleeveless bodice.

For late afternoon cocktails was one dress of off white cotton pique, with shoestring bows at the camisole neckline, and the entire dress, bodice and full skirt, sprinkled with black concentric circles. Over from the audience, a white silk organza dress was shown, applied on the top and full skirt with petal pink Chantilly lace. Under the sheer dress was a silken petticoat, which could double, and at that price should double, as another gown. It was simple, with a waistband of petal pink.

THE PIECE de resistance, and concluding dress of the show, was an original design of white silk organza extravagantly embellished with a design of gold beads and applique flowing in bias around the entire skirt and fitted round necked bodice.

Mrs. Jackson received a well-deserved round of applause for her work as commentator, as did the models, who included: Mrs. John B. Hartenstine, Mrs. Shandy Hill, Miss Nancy Saltzer, Mrs. Franklin Wertz, Miss Mary Welsh, Miss Linda Drumheller, Miss Marjorie Stofko, Mrs. Russell Freed, Mrs. Cecil Hancock, Mrs. Rosalyn Gould, Mrs. Martin Feit, Mrs. Albert Shute, Mrs. J. Paul Nufemaker, Mrs. John Hallman, Mrs. Robert Abbott, Mrs. Stanley Nowacki, Mrs. Lowell Kratz, Mrs. Nelson Feroc, Mrs. Mildred Heffner, Mrs. Earl Kerstetter, Mrs. Evans Thomas and Mrs. Alice Yocum.

If you have chives growing in your backyard you can use them in many dishes during the Summer. They're delicious added to creamed cottage cheese, scrambled eggs, or to buttered noodles or elbow macaroni. Try sprinkling them on sliced tomatoes that have been marinated in French dressing; add them, also, to a tossed green salad.

One youthful gown was calf-length, of white pique applied at the scoop neckline with bunches of grapes and vines in Venice lace, with the same applied design repeated on the flared skirt.

Gray silk organza fashioned one cocktail dress with an applied trim of leaf design on the material. This was worn with an original hat of pink velvet coring and a full blown organza poppy.

Then, arousing wistful sighs

A DRESS THAT literally floated in the breeze, incidentally exposing the model's myriads of white and white ruffled petticoats, was made of sheer cotton organza, in a large shadow print of blues and greens. The sleeveless bodice was smartly cut with bias tuckings in iridescent silk.

Gingham went formal in a blue and white checked strapless dress, with a huge navy satin bow at the top and a rhinestone-studded belt. The rhinestones were repeated in clusters on the full skirt.

And chambray, too, put on its formal face in a luscious yellow green dress, with the tulip bodice and shoulder line studded with self trim and sequins. The full skirt was completely lined, and with it was worn a close hat covered with pearlized lilacs.

And finally, the crowning touch of the show, strictly cocktail and formal dresses, of cotton, filmy organza and sheer silk.

One youthful gown was calf-length, of white pique applied at the scoop neckline with bunches of grapes and vines in Venice lace, with the same applied design repeated on the flared skirt.

Ponies, Pets and Puppets

Thrill Over 100 at Bazaar

"Tom Potts" shop all afternoon to get the "vitamins" in candy cotton and lemon sticks, two items considered by them to be vital.

ACROSS FROM the hospital grounds and Nightengale avenue, activities for children ran in full swing all day. A medium sized bright red fire engine blew its siren throughout the day, as excited young passengers realized an ambition come true after waiting all of their five or six years.

The happy music of the merry-go-round was a pleasant sound and the sight of the riders was sometimes amusing as children registered pride and distrust at the same time.

For the more daring ones there was a thing called "Blones" which whipped them around in circles.

ONE OF THE most loved of all attractions for youngsters are the pony rides. Three ponies were brought to the playground, and all had gone smoothly until a beautiful black and white one apparently bored, hot and bothered began kicking one of the others.

As horrified mothers looked on, the animals continued the fight. Mercury photographer Eugene Orlando sacrificed an excellent picture to dash across the street and grab one of the ponies located in the center of a group of dumbfounded women and children.

Both ponies, bloody and bowed, were tied to trees and later taken back to their home by their owner. The remainder of the day was enjoyed by the children riding on the back of the third—and more subdued—pony.

AT THE NOON hour luncheon was served under a huge canopy by members of the Teen-Aide and Deb-Aide auxiliaries. Next on the agenda was a puppet show for the children, while mothers and not a few interested fathers, watched the hour and a half fashion show.

Titling, "Making Money," the Kukla, Fran and Ollie type puppet show was put on by Judy Dotterer and Jean McDonnell, who made one of the puppets themselves.

One of the earliest arrivals at the puppet show was five-year-old Hank Wilson Jr., whose big problem, he told us, was whether or not the puppet show would be on television or the "real thing." Susie and Jimmy (who told us he'll be called Jim when he's big), Williams, children of Mr. and Mrs. William Williams, 1093 North Adams street, entered the tent as they practically wrestled with cotton candy cones. Susie made short work of hers, and kindly offered to do the same with her brother's.

THE SHOW was performed twice by the two girls for the children who overflowed the tent.

Of interest to all, with the children participating, was a pet show, held at 4 o'clock. Under the expert judging of Mr. Fred Greenlev, who made each child feel as though his pet was the most precious thing in the world as he stroked them, talked softly to them, and when the animals were small enough, picked them up and kissed them, winners were selected.

Those who entered dogs in the contest were:

ROGER BAUMAN and his dalmation; Philip Welch and English Pug; Nancy Quinter and Boston terrier; Richard Saylor and cocker spaniel; Sharon Houck and Boston terrier; Thomas Dick and wire haired terrier; Henry Crocker and boxer; Judy Pollock and French poodle; and Susan Hatfield and pomeranian.

Prize for best groomed dog was won by Roger Bauman; best child handler, Susan Hatfield; best dog, Judy Pollock; and grand prize for all around showmanship, Susan Tiny Sandra Stoudt, (above left) took a few pointers from the models in the fashion show at the Bicentennial Bazaar yesterday and the results are the pose above. "Strasberry Town" attracted the following women above right, (left to right) Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. E. V. Heindel, Mrs. Martin Bachmer, Mrs. Leonard Huff and Mrs. Jack Strange.

AN ANTIQUE auction was held at 7:30, and a crowd of approximately 100 people bid for the antiques that were not sold during the day. Samplers, iron kettles, old conversation pieces and wood work were some of the interesting items auctioned.

Some of the visitors, after washing the remains of the day's goodies off the faces of their children and tucking them to bed, hired baby sitters and, refreshed, came back to the grounds with their husbands to watch the evening activities which also included music and entertainment by Shorty Long, Dolly Dimples and their troupe.

On the spot designated as "Kid-die Corner," several children played in the sandbox, sliding board and see-saw under the supervision of baby sitters.

THE PLAYGROUND concession for children was in full swing (with the ponies tamed down and happy), the fire engine loaded with kiddies and blowing its siren through the jammed streets mingling with the jazz records played in true festival spirit.

Bright-eyed teen-agers, dressed in their best, stretched their necks to find that "certain" boy, and blushed or giggled when he spotted them. Tired children swore they felt in the pink and begged to just take one more ride on the bloney. . . . a worried mother's call for Tommy was lost after a second in the music and voices of the crowd. . . . and a patient of the hospital, with bandaged leg.

Columnist Pearson Punched by Lawyer

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Columnist Drew Pearson was punched in the face today by Charles Patrick Clark, Washington lawyer, in an encounter in the lobby of the Mayflower hotel.

Witnesses said only the one punch was thrown and that it appeared to land on Pearson's right eye. Clark told reporters he was incensed by columns Pearson has written about him and his friends and, on encountering Pearson in the hotel lobby, asked him to step outside. He said Pearson refused, so he popped him one anyhow.

In a column published last week, Pearson said that Clark is a "lobbyist" for Spain and has helped wangle money for Spain at a faster rate than Franco has been able to spend it.

African Colony Merger Is Proposed by Britain

LONDON, June 18 (AP)—The Government today published as a White paper its proposals to merge Britain's central African colonies of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland into one vast 475,000 square mile federation.

Oliver Lyttelton, colonial secretary, told the Commons it was proposed to set up a 35 member federal assembly together with a small African affairs board which would safeguard native interests.

All three territories concerned would still retain some of their existing powers, but the federal assembly would be the only body able to legislate on matters such as foreign policy, defense, customs, higher education, and radioactive minerals and atomic energy.

The prime minister and his cabinet, the African affairs board, and two members of the federal assembly would be nominated by the governor general. The remaining members of the federal assembly would be elected. At least six would be African.

The White paper said the financial issues involved and the problems of setting up a judiciary and a federal public service are being worked out.

Although the giraffe was found in Europe and India in previous geologic ages, it has been native only to Africa in relatively modern times.

Taft Assures Tax Cut Ike Hints Delegate 'Steal'

Lewis Offers Strike Money

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—John L. Lewis offered to lend 10 million dollars to the striking CIO Steelworkers today, and roundly denounced Senator Taft of Ohio and others advocating use of the Taft-Hartley act to halt the nation-wide strike.

Taking note of demands in Congress and elsewhere for use of a Taft-Hartley act injunction, Lewis said this would be "a heinous crime against American labor."

"It would be equivalent to the creation of a neo-Fascist movement in America, of which R. Alphonso Taft, with his jack boots and velvet pants, would be the willing tool and symbol," he said.

The United Mine Workers president made these remarks in a letter to Philip Murray, Steelworkers president. Lewis notified Murray he was placing 10 million dollars at the Steelworkers disposal, to be repaid paid "when ever you have achieved victory and convenience permits."

The money was deposited to Murray's credit in a Washington bank which the mine union controls because of the union's 100 million dollar deposits.

LEWIS HAS made several gestures of financial aid for striking unions in the past, but seldom has any of the money changed hands. In at least some cases, it was reported that unions to which the aid was offered did not want to be beholden for such assistance.

Murray did not comment on Lewis' offer. Murray's union has a rich treasury of its own. The Steelworkers do not pay any regular strike benefits. Local unions, with perhaps some help from national headquarters, arrange to take care of what they deem to be hardship cases.

The steel strike was drifting along in its 17th day today. The pinch of shortening steel supplies was beginning to be felt in some defense manufacturing and in the auto-making industry, but generally speaking such production was continuing.

An indication that the Government may be willing to give the steel industry more leeway on a price boost came today from economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam.

Rioting Breaks Out Over Race Issue

CAPETOWN, South Africa, June 18 (AP)—Rioting broke out in the native quarter of the mining boom town of Odendaals, Orange Free State, today over the Nationalist government's tightening of White Supremacy measures.

Police fired into the melee, seriously injuring four natives and wounding 20 others. A police station was wrecked, a police car burned, and some policemen were injured.

The fighting flared when town police tried to enforce an order requiring native Negro women to carry special passes when they went out on the street.

Denmark Joins Sweden in Alert Of Air Force

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 18 (AP)—Denmark joined Sweden today in alerting her air force to do battle if fired upon by Soviet planes.

Both nations, alarmed at a show of rapidly increasing force in northern Europe and the shooting down of a Swedish plane this week, thus served notice that they do not intend to bow to any long-range Soviet plan to make the Baltic a "Stalin lake."

Sweden tonight flatly rejected a Moscow protest that a Swedish catalina flying boat, shot down Monday with seven men aboard, had invaded Soviet territory and started the shooting.

The Swedish note said only two Catalinas were flying anywhere in the area at the time, that both were unarmed and therefore could not have shot at anybody, and that "thorough investigation" had established that both stayed within international waters. The plane that was shot down never got closer than 15 miles to Soviet territory, the note declared.

OPS to Suspend Whiskey Ceilings

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) will suspend price ceilings this weekend on whiskey and wine sold in bottles, price officials disclosed today.

Big stocks and lagging sales were blamed for a slump in liquor prices, which for months have been well below ceiling levels.

The scrapping of ceilings will have virtually no effect on consumers, price officials said, because prices generally are so far below the ceiling level as to make the ceilings nearly meaningless.

Distillers and dealers have been urging decontrol for months, however, because it would relieve them of the burden of reporting and paper work which goes with price control.

The suspension of ceilings will be effective from the distillery or winery all the way to the retail level, officials reported.

STEEL COMPANIES INDICTED

PITTSBURGH, June 18 (AP)—A police tried to enforce an order federal grand jury indicted six requiring native Negro women to carry special passes when they went out on the street.

CONGRESS KEEPS JOB CONTROL

Plans of President On Postmasters, Marshals Voted Down by Senate

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The Senate kept Congress in control of the distribution of 21,582 jobs back home today by voting down presidential plans to eliminate Senate confirmation of big town postmasters, U.S. marshals and customs collectors.

There were three separate reorganization plans and the opponents' margin of victory shrank progressively as the votes affected smaller numbers of appointments.

With 49, or a majority of the full Senate, needed to kill the proposals, these were the votes in order:

On 21,438 postmasters of first, second and third class, 54 to 29 or seven more than required.

On 92 U.S. marshals, 55 to 28, or 6 more than the majority.

On 32 collectors and other customs officials, 51 to 31, a margin of only two.

THE REORGANIZATION plans would have gone into effect at midnight Friday unless one house or the other adopted a resolution of disapproval.

Backers of all three plans plugged them as necessary steps to kill out the last big segment of the political spoils system and promote efficiency in government through the merit system of employee selection and promotion.

Opponents argued that they would merely transfer the politics of appointments behind an iron curtain of bureaucracy, deprive the people of a check on selections through their elected representatives, and give the executive department heads, especially the postmaster general, the opportunity to build a tremendous political machine.

Senator McClellan (D-Ark) led the fight against all three proposals. Earlier in the year his government operations committee had turned thumbs down on a plan wiping out Senate confirmation of the 64 internal revenue collectors, but that plan won out on the Senate floor, 53 to 37.

Army Needs Men

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Secretary of the Army Pace said tonight "it will be imperative to ask Congress for more men" if the war in Korea continues.

He did not say how many more would be required. The United States now has nearly 2½ million men under arms in the Army, Navy, and Air Force.

The secretary gave his appraisal to a Senate appropriations subcommittee in a prepared statement made public by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo). O'Mahoney is chairman of the group, which met behind closed doors.

Nehru Goes On Himalayan Trek

On a visit to Gangtok, capital of the state of Sikkim, India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru rides a weary-looking horse across a 15,000-foot Himalayan pass, on the Tibet-Sikkim border. He made the trip over the Gangtok-Nathula road, the main trade route to Tibet.

Japan Decides on Chiang

TOKYO, June 18 (AP)—Japan's office of Asia bureau, explained the move today, recognizes Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists as the government for all China, thus slamming the door on speculation she might sign a separate pact with Red China.

The major policy decision, announced by the Japanese foreign office, followed months of wavering. The treaty signed with the Chinese Nationalists April 28 had left an opening for relations with Peiping.

Eiji Wajima, chief of the foreign office's Asia bureau, explained the move today, recognizes Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists as the government for all China, thus slamming the door on speculation she might sign a separate pact with Red China.

The new position is this: 1. Japan has "no relations whatsoever with the Peiping regime" and it "is inconceivable" that Japan will sign any treaty with that government.

2. The treaty with the Nationalist government applies to all China. There no longer is a state of war that calls for any further treaty with any Chinese government.

MANY JAPANESE merchants and politicians look to Red China as an eventual, inevitable market for Japan's resurgent industry. The Chinese mainland and southeast Asia are the traditional sources of Japan's raw materials.

(The Peiping radio today continued its efforts to woo support from Japanese businessmen in the Communist campaign against the Yoshida government.

DENVER, June 18 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today promised a tax cut within two years if elected President and then he indirectly accused Sen. Robert Taft of a GOP National convention delegate "steal" in Texas.

With these two statements, among others, the general collided head-on with the Ohio Senator in their race for the Republican presidential nomination.

Eisenhower told Republican delegates from Oregon that taxes could not be reduced until the budget deficit is wiped out and until the Western powers reach a balance of military power with Russia.

He estimated the military "equilibrium" will be achieved in would be a "steady shrinkage" in taxes.

EARLIER IN Washington, Taft had pledged a 15 percent tax cut if he were elected.

Eisenhower said he understands the will of the "people of Texas" "had been thwarted" by the Taft forces in the selection of GOP delegates to the National convention. He said he intends to go to Texas (Saturday) and raise his voice against what has happened.

With this statement, Eisenhower for the first time spoke out publicly against the Taft forces who have been accused by the Eisenhower camp of illegally grabbing off Texas convention delegates.

In a rapid-fire series of questions and answers, the general said:

1. He does not have any easy, simple solution to the Korean War.
2. He believes if the United States should quit Korea it would be an "ignominious surrender of our position in the world."
3. He would like to see the South Korean army built up to the point where United Nations troops could be pulled from the front lines into a mobile reserve.

GOP Committee Gets Problem Of Texas Seats

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The Republican National committee today was handed the problem of deciding which 38-member delegation from Texas should be seated at the National convention. The one favoring Sen. Robert A. Taft or the one for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

But the squabble may not be settled until it's threshed out on the convention floor.

Mrs. Charles P. Howard, secretary of the National committee, ruled that the arguments should be presented at special hearings starting around July 1 in Chicago, six days before the convention itself begins.

Judging from what's gone on so far, there should be (A) plenty of fireworks, Texas style, and (B) an appeal to the convention, no matter which way the National committee rules.

BOTH THE Eisenhower and the Taft people have said they represent the true sentiment in Texas. And with 38 votes meaning so much at this late stage of the campaign, the argument undoubtedly will generate plenty of heat.

But, on the surface at least, today's decision should please both factions.

Eisenhower's backers have objected to turn the argument back to the Texas Republican committee over to Taft. They contend Taft controls the Texas committee.

But in an earlier statement today Taft said he believes the rules call for a decision by the National committee.

They would have to refer the matter of arrangements to Moscow.

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Senator Taft of Ohio promised today that if he is the next President he will cut taxes 15 percent and ask Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's advice on military problems.

But for the most part Taft banged away hard at Eisenhower. The Senator and the general are the top rivals for the Republican presidential nomination.

During a day of heavy campaigning around the national capital, Taft got in breakfast, a speech and question and answer session with a conference of business paper editors. He turned up at the National Press club for lunch, another speech and more questions and answers.

About the nicest thing the Senator could find to say of Eisenhower was that he "would be most anxious to secure his advice on the matters on which I'd have to deal in the military field." He said he didn't think he should answer a question as to whether he believed a professional soldier is qualified to be President.

IT WAS the business paper editors who got word first that Taft is "willing to pledge a straight 15 percent cut in taxes" if he moves into the White House.

Maine's Governor Is Happy

Gov. Frederick G. Payne of Maine, and his wife, Ella, are all smiles as they hear the returns in the Maine Republican Senatorial primary election at headquarters in Waldoboro, June 18. Gov. Payne defeated Senator Owen Brewster for the nomination for U. S. Senator in the closest primary in almost 30 years. Brewster, 63, has been in the Senate 12 years. Payne has been governor since 1949.

Senate Kills Legislation That Authorizes U. S. to Join in St. Lawrence Seaway Plan

WASHINGTON, June 18 (P)—The Senate, paying no heed to a plea by President Truman, today killed legislation authorizing this country to join with Canada in construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

It ordered, by a vote of 43 to 40, that the bill be returned to the committee for further study. The action doomed any possibility of the measure again being considered at this session of Congress.

Administration Faces House Showdown On Economic Control

WASHINGTON, June 18 (P)—Administration leaders moved toward a showdown on economic controls in the House today, with a final vote set for tomorrow.

As four hours of general debate on the legislation began, Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.) served notice that he will offer an amendment calling on President Truman to use the Taft-Hartley injunction procedure to interrupt the national steel strike.

The Senate already has urged this on Truman, and Administration leaders appeared resigned that the House will follow suit.

Under the Taft-Hartley act, the President is empowered to ask the courts for 80-day no-strike injunctions in work stoppages where the nation's security is involved. Truman has told Congress this course of action would be "futile," and has asked for legislation giving him authority to seize the steel mills until the labor dispute is settled.

THE ADMINISTRATION also faces a fight in the House on a proposal to abolish the Wage Stabilization board (WSB), chief policy-maker in the wage field. Although the House labor committee went on record in favor of abolishment by a topheavy vote last night, Truman supporters in the House think they still have a chance of saving the WSB.

CHINESE STOP HILL ATTEMPTS

Heavy Artillery Fire Falls Off; Rains Spare Reds From Bombings

SEOUL, Thursday, June 19 (P)—The Chinese Reds Wednesday broke off the invasion road to Seoul after six days of attacks that cost them at least 2000 casualties. Red artillery cut loose with what the Eighth Army called a "very heavy" barrage shortly before noon. The fire fell off in mid-afternoon and quiet returned to the T-shaped hill 50 miles north of Seoul.

Rains came and spared the Chinese from the aerial plastering they have been getting since U. S. infantry seized the first of three knobs on the hill June 12.

A front line Allied officer warned that the hill did not mean necessarily that the Chinese had given up attempts to recapture the height.

WHILE ALLIED troops rested on this hill west of Chorwon, other United Nations raiders struck north of Chorwon and at scattered points eastward to the Munding valley on the rocky eastern front.

The Eighth Army described this action as light. Small Communist probes were reported northwest of Kumiha on the central front and farther east near the Munding valley.

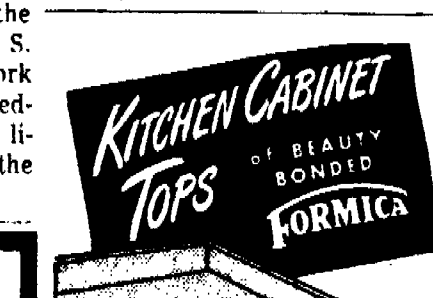

The rains and clouds blotted out North Korean targets for the Fifth Air Force. Only weather reconnaissance planes went up.

In Washington the Defense department announced U. S. battle casualties in Korea had reached 109,971, an increase of 259 over the previous week's total. The figures, based on notification of next of kin through June 13, included two killed and 218 wounded.

MILITARY WANTS MONEY WASHINGTON, June 18 (P)—Undersecretary of the Army Karl A. Bendisen today asked the Senate Armed Services committee to authorize expenditure of $408,740,000 for military construction in the year beginning July 1.

May Employment Is Reported Best In Recent Months

The Pottstown area's employment picture in May was the "brightest" one of recent months, it was reported yesterday by Margaret H. King, manager of the Pennsylvania State Employment service office at 350 King street.

"There was an increase in new hires, as well as absorption of employees who have been in a lay-off status or on a part-time basis," she asserted.

"In line with the increased trend in employment during May," the manager continued, "the number of applicants seeking employment through the Pottstown PSES office decreased from 911 in April to 753 in May."

There was an increased demand for semi-skilled and unskilled workers in the textile industry. Plants in the metal industries, not including foundries, added more than 100 workers (some of them vacation time replacements).

BAD WEATHER has kept employment on construction below expectations, she said, but the industry expects to absorb all skilled workers within the next few weeks north of Chorwon and to have them on a 48-hour work week. This should increase the need for unskilled construction workers, the manager added.

"While for the most part, employment was good," she concluded, "there are some temporary lay-offs anticipated in the next few months. None of these is expected to be for more than a two-week period."

High School Shop to Be Moved To Provide Classroom Space

In an effort to create more classroom space, the Boyertown School board has approved the transfer of the high school wood shop to be replaced with three classrooms. This action was taken at last night's school board meeting.

The wood shop will be relocated in the farm shop to the rear of the high school. Franklin Gottshall, wood shop instructor, will be in charge of moving shop machinery and lumber from the school building.

Samuel R. Knouse, school board president, conducted the monthly meeting.

It was announced that next Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock, the local board will meet with 13 other school boards from Montgomery and Berks counties to discuss jointure procedures. A. M. Kulp, Montgomery county superintendent of schools, advised the Boyertown board that he will attend.

NINE OF THE SCHOOL boards expected to attend are from Berks county, and five are from Montgomery county.

On the recommendation of property chairman, Augustus D. Gresh, the two chimneys on the Washington grade school will be rebuilt. Gresh also reported that the floors at Washington school have been repaired.

The board gave Gresh its okay to have the roof on the farm shop repaired at a cost of $841.

Approval was given to the Church of the Good Shepherd, Evangelical and Reformed, Sunday school, to use the Lincoln grade school during the renovation of the Sunday school rooms. The classes will meet at the school on Sunday's beginning in July until the changes are made at the church.

THE SCHOOL BOARD stressed that only in cases of emergency, such as this instance, will it allow the school building be used by outside groups.

Tax collector Paul R. Keyser was released of all 1951 taxes, and immediately appointed delinquent real estate tax collector, Earl H. Keim was appointed delinquent per capita tax collector. Charles A. Y. Davidheiser was re-elected treasurer, and along with Keyser and Keim was bonded for $1000.

Davidheiser reported the balance in the general fund is $39,227.42; sinking fund, $14,221.72, and directed that bills totaling $10,697.09 be paid for the past month.

George B. Swinehart, supervising principal of the school district, joined the board in approving a three-week leave of absence to Herbert Stevens, agriculture teacher, who plans to finish degree work at Pennsylvania state college from July 21 to Aug. 9. Jack

Compromise is Desirable

FOR too long a time disagreement has existed among North End firemen and nearby residents over where a new Pottstown fire-fighting company was to be established.

Firemen purchased a lot at Prospect and Evans streets, which they said was central to the fast-growing and residential North End section. They planned to build a fourth Pottstown firehouse there.

Residents complained their peace and quiet would be disturbed by the noises usually concomitant with a fire company. They descended with force on the zoning commission to show their displeasure.

Fourteen months the Pottstown zoning commission decided against removing zoning restrictions from a strictly residential area to allow the building of a fire house there.

The firemen subsequently appealed the case to the Montgomery county courts. A hearing was held and all parties now are awaiting a decision.

In this case, as in many where human beings rebel because they feel their rights are being infringed upon by the invasion of noisy neighbors, it would seem a compromise would be the best solution.

Firemen are angry now because nearby residents oppose what they feel is the biggest thing yet thought up for Pottstown—a new fire company.

Firemen point out that a fire company in the North End is a necessity. Such a fast-growing section needs protection, they claim. Further, firemen are gentlemen and don't intend making their home a nuisance.

Residents say any firehouse will be bothersome. Noise is a natural ally with such a company because liquor will be sold, slot machines may be operated, and loud conversations may go on through the night while the local residents are trying to get their sleep and rest.

Both sides have good arguments. Much is to be said for each.

But why not try to arbitrate the differences—and compromise all around?

Firehouse needn't be noisy. Norristown knows this because of a similarly named company, the North Ends. This Norristown company is in the center of a large, quiet neighborhood. Original opposition to construction of a firehouse in this Norristown neighborhood dwindled. Today there are no complaints.

A firehouse is a necessity. It can't be built, as Judge Arnold Forrest pointed out at a zoning appeal, on the fringe of a community, or on its borderline. A fire company to be efficient and of value must be within reach of the community it is to serve. It must be on a wide street, not tucked away on a narrow thoroughfare where traffic is restricted.

Now, a fire company doesn't have to install slot machines, nor sell liquor to become operative. It doesn't have to stage week-long carnivals or block parties. It doesn't have to put on square dances or public balls.

Firemen certainly can moderate their voices. They can have quiet social functions that won't disturb any neighborhood.

The zoning commission is empowered to make certain rules if exceptions to the law are granted.

The commission may legislate into an exception the requirement that no liquor may be sold on the premises, no slot machines may be operated, no loud carnivals or block parties may be held in the vicinity.

This should assure neighbors the peace would not be disturbed.

If lawyers who have been battling for months on this case could agree on certain compromises, assuring each side of cooperation, it would be an achievement all around.

Everybody would feel better—and Pottstown would have a fourth fire company it is said to need.

Editor, The Mercury, June 18.

Dear Sir 'n' Brother:

Wal, I see by The Mercury where the heat wave caused a young lady to do strip tease on High Street. Golly, isn't it time for the editor to write a scorching editorial on the Barbary coast of Pottstown?

What is this world coming to? The fire department of Richmond, Va., won't answer calls to get cats out of trees. Now, if only the neighborhood dogs would cooperate . . .

And say: A fashion pageant for men only was staged in Ashbury Park, N. J. That reminds me, I could stand a skinshine!

Hope you air the same.

READERS SAY:

Borough Should Be Prepared for Bad Drought

Avoid Water Shortage

To the Editor: In reading about the shortage of water, I would like to agree with the suggestion about the need for improving the water system.

Every year, there is a shortage of water, which is blamed on heat or drought. This year, things got bad in June, when the drought had only lasted two weeks or less.

One of these times, we are going to have a really bad drought. The borough had better spend the money to fix things up before we find ourselves in terrible shape, people without enough water for their health and homes burning down because firemen couldn't get the pressure.

Pottstown WORRIED

TV Is Worse

To the Editor: In reading the story in The Mercury about the case against the Boyertown fire company accused of putting on improper shows, I would like to say that, though I do not have any opinion about what went on there, I think the State should worry less about what goes on in fire halls and more about what comes over the air and television.

WASHINGTON

Price Supports Help Demos Win Farm Vote

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, June 18—Republican concern over Democratic attempts to duplicate 1948's alleged manipulation of market factors affecting the farm vote appears fully justified, in view of prospective shake-ups in the Department of Agriculture's agency that promotes the expansion of rural electrical and telephone facilities.

Along with price supports and allied benefits, this is one of the Administration's most effective political weapons in the farm areas. The Rural Electrification Administration has changed the rural landscape and rural living.

It has eased the work of the farmer, his wife and family. It has increased productivity. It has given them all the comforts and enjoyments of metropolitan residents, from electric stoves to television sets.

It is in this field that Truman's farm strategists will operate—and manipulate—in order to convince this influential voting bloc that a Democratic president will continue to be its greatest friend and benefactor.

CHANGES: Recent harvest and economic changes present both the need and the opportunity for the Administration to sell this idea to the farmers. Crop reports forecast bumper harvests of major commodities at the very moment when prices on many agricultural products are falling or weakening.

Discontent over these conditions could drive them back into the Republican fold, of course. They vote that ticket normally. But if the "ins" can allay this dissatisfaction by rigging prices, controls and government purchases, they may check a return to the GOP.

A political alternative will be to maintain that the opposition was responsible for the downturn, as Truman did in 1948.

SHIFT: The need for holding several farm states in the Democratic column is evident to that party's politicians. In 1948, the shift of 60,000 votes in only four states—Ohio, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin—would have elected Dewey over Truman.

Should there be a southern revolt of real proportions next November, the Democrats would be lost without reserve strength from other sections. There is also the prospect that the Democrats may suffer in metropolitan areas where labor, racial and liberal elements have become disgruntled. It is in the cities, too, that the corruption issue should hurt.

Thus, it is entirely probable that the result of the presidential election may be determined by the returns from the vast stretch of agricultural states between the Mississippi River and the Rockies. As natives of that area, Truman, Taft and Eisenhower appreciate its ballot-box importance.

SUPPLANTING: With these considerations in mind, Truman is thinking of supplanting Claude R. Wickard, veteran head of the Rural Electrification Administration and former Secretary of Agriculture, with a smooth political operator. He is former Representative Clyde T. Ellis of Arkansas, who now heads one of the most effective vote-getting lobbies at the Capital.

Wickard, who hails from Indiana, has done such an excellent job that almost 80 percent of the nation's farms are electrified. He once exercised such great political influence that he was largely responsible for carrying out Franklin D. Roosevelt's order to insure Henry A. Wallace's nomination as vice president in 1940. But he has lost his political roots from long residence here, and he is "disposable."

Ellis is the handsome, voluble, go-getter and promoter sort. After a few years in the House, he was defeated in the primary when he sought the senatorial nomination from Arkansas. But he landed on both financial feet by organizing the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. The name is sometimes confused with REA's title, to the co-op's advantage.

But the person who has whipped himself along through the years into accomplishing the tasks he has assigned to himself, is the one who has a trained will, or will power.

Rose, despite her 93 years, again could be seen plodding around the Chicago loop on a cane because she had already forced herself to do what her mind decided was right and proper.

From early childhood, she had forced her body to obey the dictates of her brain.

As a little girl, she cleaned her plate of food before asking for dessert, even though she disliked some of the viands before her.

She got up on zero mornings and plodded through snow to help her husband with his church work.

She had 90 years of development for her will power before the auto struck her, so she had trained her body to obey her mind, and it reacted habitually.

The name and complete address of the author must accompany every contribution but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 250 words will receive preference.

People do not go to fire hall shows expecting to see Girl Scout campfire shows, but people sitting in their own living rooms should have some defense against the unexpected, unwanted outbursts of suggestiveness we get from some of the so-called comedians.

I have been around some fairly rough places and do not mind so much for myself, but I hate to have children and ladies subjected to it. If they can't be funny without being dirty, let 'em go to work for a living.

Pottstown BURNED-UP

'Drop Dead'

To the Editor: To that wise-guy motorist who swung around the corner on High and Hanover streets last week—pedestrians always have the right-of-way.

As the traffic light changed in my favor, I started to cross High street, when this egomaniac driver in a high-powered car swung around the corner.

He became very provoked when he had to jam on his brakes to avoid hitting me (a powerful 150 pounds pitted against a mere 2 1/2 tons of steel). As he roared by, he shouted, "Don't ya wanna live long bud?" before I even got a chance to yell back:

"Drop dead!"

Pottstown, WARY PEDESTRIAN

Watch Our Step!

To the Editor: Wishful thinkers, being lost for words in their futile efforts to combat the jagged edged dagger of communism, now are babbling idiotically about "tropic ceilings" so that the United States, China and Russia will set the personnel limit at 1 1/2 million each on their armed forces.

Remember in the '20s and the '30s when the United States, Great Britain and Japan agreed to a 3-3-2 ratio (on paper) and the United States like fools sank one-fourth to one-third of our fleet and Japan kept right on building up her fleet?

Then came Pearl Harbor. We were smart then and now we think we are smart again.

The wishful thinkers want America to play "Russian roulette."

Pottstown SHOT GUN

The Voice of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Letter From a Worried Sister

Dear Miss Kilgallen:

THIS MAY SOUND like a silly idea to you, but after talking it over pro and con in a "hen party" we decided to submit it to you and see what resulted.

There are eight of us, all happily married and homebodies, but having single sisters who are not in the "old maid" class with no immediate prospects of marriage. We would like to help them get some fun out of life, and possibly meet "the man" too.

Three of these gals in the single bliss state are in their early 40s, and while they are just as nice and sweet as anyone could possibly be, they are not able to meet eligible men in their own age group. Speaking of my own sister, she is 42 but looks 35, is as good as gold, does not smoke, drink or indulge in any wild flings, loves to dance and is a good conversationalist, but in our district there are just no single men in her age group. All are married or have been married and divorced and are not considered eligible in her eyes.

The idea we thought of is this: On some of the television programs like "Strike It Rich" they give help to people in the matter of clothes, surgery, etc. Couldn't this help be stretched a little bit to include old maids? People could write in letters about the good points of their favorite old maid, and a date could be set up with some famous actor or some eligible man, with dinner somewhere and flowers, to make her, in a sense, queen for a day and make her feel appreciated by someone. There are millions of kids with favorite "old maid" aunts who love them but can't help them.

Thanks a million for your column—maybe a small item in your column would get the ball rolling.

D.S.P., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR D.S.P.: WELL, HERE'S the item—I hope it helps but I doubt it. The old maid seems to be a problem we have always with us, and I don't think even the miracle of large-screen television can solve it. I have a feeling it would be of more value if some of you happily married homebodies would figure out with reasonable accuracy, what you have that your sisters haven't got, and how they can get it. Are you better looking, better cooks, or just easier to please?

One date with a famous actor might be fun, but it would be asking life to be like the movies to expect anything permanent to come of that. Or a date with an "eligible" man (by the way, does that mean merely unmarried, or unmarried, well - to - do, handsome, courtly and virtuous?) could prove stimulating, too—but if a man is really attractive enough to make it worth while, what does he need, to put it crudely, with an old maid who has to get her dates via television? Where would they dig HIM up?

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

ROSE H., 93, was a dynamic little old lady with wit still sharp.

At the age of 90, she was struck by an automobile as she was crossing the street. The driver was at fault, for she had the green light.

She spent months in the hospital with a broken hip, plus a fractured leg. For the usual woman of 90, those injuries would have proved fatal.

But not for this dynamic lady. She vowed she would be up and around. By sheer will power she drove herself along the road to recovery.

Few people thought she'd ever be able to walk, even if she did get well. But she said God had given her a pair of legs to walk upon and she was going to use them for that purpose!

After that she relied upon a cane and was not too agile, but she got around and attended church regularly.

HER HUSBAND had been a clergyman, and all of her interests were wrapped up in the church, plus the friends she knew there, so she felt marooned while bedridden.

I cite her case to show you a good example of what a determined mind can accomplish.

It is a common observation in medicine that a person with the will to live can scarcely be killed, even though he may have double pneumonia or other diseases that might normally be fatal.

But a person with a defeatism complex or an exaggerated fear of disease, may succumb in spite of modern medical treatment that should easily cure the patient.

But will power is not something which you can inherit, except that it is indirectly related to intelligence.

Will power is the habit of carrying through to a successful conclusion the tasks which we have set for ourselves.

The person who never finishes his chores in childhood and who doesn't clean up his playroom or otherwise complete his jobs, is not likely to have much will power.

But the person who has whipped himself along through the years into accomplishing the tasks he has assigned to himself, is the one who has a trained will, or will power.

Hollywood

By EDITH GWYN

HOLLYWOOD, June 18—The Richard Todd (remember how wonderful he was in "The Hasty Heart") are on the stock's list. . . . If Ava Gardner decides she won't do "Battle Circus" opposite Humphrey Bogart at Metro, then Dorothy McGuire is next in line. By the way, Mrs. Bogey, who is Lauren Bacall, won't be a bit surprised if the long-legged bird brings them twins when he flies in at the Bogarts' new mansion soon. . . . Alan Nixon, once wed to Marie Wilson, will be the male lead in a new "Death Valley" series being produced by Gene Autry's Flying A company. We mentioned a while back that Autry will make a fresh fortune from the rodeo tour he'll do come fall. But meantime, Gene stars in three movies; will do a weekly rodeo in this area; and produce no less than twenty films for his Television outfit. (Doesn't he ever get TIRED?)

JUDY GARLAND is still "honeymooning" alone in San Francisco, following her quiet marriage to Sid Luft last week. Sid has had to be in court here in connection with the suit by which his ex, Lyn Bari just won increased support. Been watching the horses run at Hollywood Park, too. And one of the first to congratulate Sid on his wedding was Lyn Bari, who ran into him at the Turf Club yesterday. . . . Carole Matthews gets her first singing and dancing role in "The Great Companions" now shooting with Dan Dailey and Diana Lynn. . . . The Francis Lederers will tell their troubles to a judge, after all. Marion Lederer will file her suit within a week.

A SUDDEN switch may have Barry Sullivan appearing opposite Barbara Stanwyck in "Riptide" (a remake of that old, old Norma Shearer starrer) ahead of "Why Should I Cry," announced for him few days ago. Darned few, we'd wager, remember that Robert Montgomery was Norma's leading man in the original "Riptide" . . . If anyone cares, Barbara Payton and Tom Neal expect to leap to Europe together next month and co-star in a picture over there. Meanwhile, those two are furnishing Hollywood's "sight of the week" for sure! Neal and Payton drive up to the local Unemployment Office in HER Cadillac and she sits in it—just waiting while he picks up his unemployment check! . . . A sight that was nice: The Bob Cummings, celebrating his birthday at La Rue—winding up with a big cheese-cake, featuring ONE candle, set before Bob.

MINE MULES—George W. Landis, of North Coventry, representing the Schuylkill Coal and Navigation company, is trying to find pasturage among area farmers for hundreds of mine mules which are being taken out of anthracite coal mines as a result of the long-continued strike. It is said several hundred mules will be stabled at the old company farm located above Neiman's Pond.

BARBER INJURED — Thomas R. Cook, barber, suffered painful face and head injuries when he fell while alighting from a trolley car at High and Madison streets. He made a misstep and landed on his face in the street.

ALL AROUND THE TOWN

Nagle Writes Book . . . Mrs. Wendell Also . . .

★ AUTHOR—Charles S. Nagle, the Pottstown auto tycoon, has turned author. He has given the world a 64-page work called "Wheels of Progress" which details the progress of the automobile. Nagle, who observed his 25th anniversary in the motor car field in 1948, got the inspiration for the book back on April 25. He was inspired by a desire to put his thoughts down on paper. He worked with diligence for almost a month, mostly at night, until, on May 20, he finished his manuscript. He included a short history of Pottstown, had it checked by Isaac Thomas, Hill school master. Then he spent several thousand dollars to have 2000 copies printed and bound. These he will give to his friends and customers.

DEDICATED was the book to J. (Jack) O'Brien and Larry E. Boyer, "faithful friends and loyal employees for 25 years and more." The booklet gained a great deal of attention among automobile industry people and will gain circulation as far as London, England. He mailed a copy to a Rotarian friend there yesterday. The volume was designed by Paul Wescott, former Hill school-artist. It contains many pages of pictures of Nagle employees, his sons and his home.

★ SPEAKING OF AUTHORS, Mrs. James I. Wendell, wife of the Hill school headmaster, had an article in the feature position in the June issue of the Reading Railroad magazine. It was written around the Pottstown bicentennial celebration. Mrs. Wendell most graciously mentioned The Mercury as one of Pottstown's greatest assets in a paragraph which said: "The town's industries now number approximately 70, its three banks have depositing totaling more than $37 million, and the latest census shows a population of 22,598. Three hundred and ninety-seven stores with annual sales of $37 million, and the nationally known newspaper, The Mercury, are among its greatest assets."

TRAVELER—Marion Fridy, 461 North Hanover street, is leaving this morning for Billings, Mont., where she will attend the wedding of her cousin, Shirley Sherman . . . The cynic said the new cars are so classy today that instead of the motor purring it sneers! . . . DEFINITION—Intuition: A woman's ability to read between men's lies. . . . Thank goodness we live in a free country (where a man dares say just what he thinks—if his wife, the neighbors, the reporters, the police, and his boss are not listening!).

★ TOP NEWS—Here it is! William Stanton, of Chestnut Hill, Pottstown RD 2, has reported that he picked the first ripe tomato from his garden. Anybody match it or beat it? . . . Bout time to remind you the watermelon is the giant of the cucumber family. It is one of the most refreshing of Summer foods and a longtime favorite loot of larcenous boys. It also is big business. In 1951, a total of 83 million watermelons, valued at $30 million were raised and eaten in the U.S. The majority of watermelons consumed in this country reach the market in late Spring and early Summer, and are grown in Florida, California, Georgia, Texas, South Carolina, Missouri and Arizona. A late Summer crop from the northern states accounts for only about 10 million melons annually. The watermelon grows in numerous varieties, and when mature may weigh as little as eight or more than 80 pounds. Some varieties are cannon-ball round and some are sausage-cylindrical. Some are green, dark or light, some yellow, and some striped, green and yellow.

YOUR HEALTH
By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

AIRPLANE accidents, explosions and industrial mishaps, constantly call our attention to the great damage and suffering from serious burns. They also point up the importance of a new type of dressing for burns and wounds — a protective gelatin-like substance.

So far, doctors have been impressed with the manner in which this new treatment relieves pain, promotes fast healing, and prevents infection.

The substance, known as a casein gel, is applied directly to the burned area. It is then covered with gauze that has been treated with zinc acetate. As with any burn, sterile dressings and handling are essential to prevent infection. If there is any dead skin, the doctor usually removes it, then applies the gelatin layer with a sterile wooden applicator. A fairly thick layer is applied, followed by strips of the treated gauze. A roller bandage may then be wound loosely around the area.

The gel, which is a protein substance, forms a film that sticks to the injured area. This gives better protection from movements and further injury than the usual pressure type dressing.

A film of this nature also prevents the loss of fluid from the tissues. Such fluid loss normally occurs in burns, but may cause a great deal of shock when the burns are severe or widespread. This treatment also prevents much blistering.

After a severe third-degree burn, the skin that has been destroyed must sometimes be replaced by skin grafts. With the new type of dressing, grafts can usually be done much sooner. Less serious burns also heal more readily than with other dressings.

It seems that this new method should prove a great boon, especially in industrial accidents, where quick healing is at a premium.
